This 1970 storyline is set in a small village in Western New York. A mother and daughter struggle to make their recently opened Detective Agency a success. Blossom Jacobs, formerly employed by the Wyoming County Sheriff's Office and her daughter, Becky, a recent graduate of Genesee Community College (degree in Criminal Justice) decide against all odds to create an investigative unit in what is a male chauvinism environment. They are trying to do this while adjusting to the fact that their husband/father, Buddy, has been declared an M.I.A.(missing in action) in Vietnam.

What started as a simple house break-in is soon followed by a number of other disturbing ones. This leaves the local (male dominated) authorities completely baffled and indirectly provides the female detectives an opportunity to prove themselves capable of solving even the hardest of cases.

This mysterious break-in case send the detectives on a journey into the past, where Diamonds, stolen in a daring train robbery in the 1920's takes center stage. Follow the sleuths as they match wit with determination to find the long lost clues that lead to remarkable conclusion (or does it, as this is only the beginning to what will become an International Saga).
